Jail employees could face charges

Charlotte Smith
Editor

Three employees of the Fulton County Detention Center, one male and two females, could face official misconduct charges following an incident that occurred on Saturday, Nov. 15.

"The incident in question led us to review video after it was brought to my attention on Monday, Nov. 17," stated Jailer Ricky Parnell. "After we saw what happened we determined that it was a violation of the PREA (Prison Rape Elimination Act) Standards. We then contacted Kentucky State Police, which is standard protocol and required by federal law, to investigate the incident."

In compliance with Section 115.22 of the PREA Standards, the Kentucky Department of Corrections (KDOC) has a zero tolerance toward all forms of sexual abuse and sexual harassment.

The male employee could be charged with Official Misconduct, 1st Degree and the two female employees with Official Misconduct, 2nd Degree.

Kentucky State Trooper Durbin is handling the investigation.

Grissom resigns from RECC after 14 years

After 14 years as the President/CEO of Hickman-Fulton Counties Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation (HFRECC) Greg Grissom has made the decision to accept a position with Pennyrile Electric, Hopkinsville-based electric cooperative. Grissom began serving as the President/CEO of HFRECC in November 2000. He will assume his new role with the Pennyrile RECC on March 2, 2015, replacing Eston Glover, Jr. who is retiring.

Greg Grissom

Chairman of Pennyrile Electric's Board of Directors, Bryson Price says, "Our entire board is really pleased to choose Greg Grissom as our new President/CEO. He is an industry leader, has shown the ability, and has the experience to carry on the excellent leadership that Eston Glover, Jr. has provided to this cooperative during his time as President/CEO. We are excited for Pennyrile's future and we look forward to working with Greg."

"Fourteen years ago, HFRECC had the difficult task of hiring its 10th general manager in the history of 77 years existence", said David Kimbell, Chairman of the Board. "Mr. Grissom has since become the second most tenured

Parkway Regional 2013 Top Performer

Parkway Regional Hospital (PRH) of Fulton has been named a 2013 Top Performer on Key Quality Measures by The Joint Commission, the nation's leading accreditor of health care organizations.

"This honor means that our community can turn to PRH with confidence, knowing that we strive to provide excellent care every day," said John Ballard, Chief Executive Officer, PRH.

"Following evidence-based clinical protocols close to 100 percent of the time is not an easy goal to reach, but one that has been achieved through the dedication of our physicians, nurses and other caregivers," added Ballard.

The honor recognizes hospitals that excel at meeting the Commission's stringent measurements for exemplary patient care. This is the fourth time PRH has earned the designation.

Only 1,224, or approximately one-third, of eligible United States hospitals achieved the distinction for attaining and sustaining excellence in certain clinical measures.

The prestigious annual list was released recently in the Commission's 2014 annual report, "America's Hospitals: Improving Quality and Safety."

Top Performers are recognized each year for improving performance on evidence-based interventions that increase the chances of healthy outcomes for patients with certain conditions, including heart attack, heart failure, pneumonia, surgical care, children's asthma, stroke, venous thromboembolism, perinatal care, inpatient psychiatric services and immunizations.

PRH was recognized for attaining and sustaining excellence in accountability measure performance for Pneumonia and Surgical Care.

PRH is one of 147 hospitals to have achieved this accomplishment for four consecutive years. It was recognized in 2010, 2011, 2012 and 2013 for its performance on accountability measure for Pneumonia and Surgical Care.

"We are proud of our physicians and clinical staff for their hard work to provide safe, effective care across the hospital," said Chris Gooch, Chief of Staff, PRH. "The Joint Commission's recognition of our efforts is very gratifying for our entire team."

To be a 2013 Top Performed, hospitals had to meet three performance criteria based on 2013 accountability measure data, including:

- Achieving cumulative performance of 95 percent or above across all reported accountability measures;
- Achieving performance of 95 percent or above across all reported accountability measures;
- Achieving performance of 95 percent or above on each and every reported accountability measure where there were at least 30 denominator cases;
- Having at least one core

FCHS Ag students rank number one

Justin Suttles

Fulton County Agricultural Teacher Justin Suttles received great news concerning Fulton County High School's agriculture students. Suttles was informed that FCHS's ag students were ranked not only among the top 10, but number one, in four components of the ACT.

"One behalf of the entire Kentucky Agricultural Education State Staff, I am pleased to inform you that your students went above and beyond on the ACT," stated Brandon K. Davis, Division of College and Career Readiness. "For the 2013-2014 school year your agricultural education program ranked among the top 10 of all agricultural education programs in the Commonwealth of Kentucky on four components of the ACT. Those components include: ACT - English, ACT - Reading, ACT – Science Reasoning, and ACT – Composite.

"You should be very proud of your students' performance," he added. "The effective incorporation of academic concepts is vital to ensure that Career and Technical Education students are successful after they leave high school. This proves that agricultural education is more than just technical content; it's the combination of rigorous academic concepts, relevant employability experiences, and impactful leadership opportunities, which leads to methodical development of the entire student."

"Since I've been at Fulton County I've said we have the best students in the state, now we

FCHS is striving to be Kentucky's best

Charlotte Smith

Members of the Fulton County High School (FCHS) Site-Based Decision Making (SBDM) Council hosted the November School Board meeting on Thursday, Nov. 20. After touring the facilities, FCHS Principal Ellen Murphy and SBDM members Deatrik Kinney, Kim Roberts, Justin Suttles, Jill Coffey and Mindy Major informed the board that their ultimate goal is to strive to be Kentucky's best.

"We know we have the best students and the best staff," stated Murphy. "We want the state of Kentucky to know that and we know that they use test scores to determine that."

Following the school's mission statement which includes development independent learners to their fullest potential and partnering with the community, the staff at FCHS are choosing to highlight areas that make FCHS stand out.

"Things like our small class sizes and our teacher/student relationships, create a positive learning environment," added Murphy. "Incorporating 15 minutes of reading time into our second period classes and focuses on College Career Readiness and career pathways are additional highlights at FCHS this year."

Murphy also discussed the needs and home life situations of the high school's students. "Because of our small and close knit community we know what our students need," she added.

"We have decided to celebrate our students' achievements every nine weeks," Roberts said. "Placing photos in The Hickman Courier and on the school's bulletin board. We are showcasing our students."

The data shows that, overall, the high school improved from a score of 63.2 to 65.9. "This is good, but we want to be Proficient," noted Murphy. "Our ACT composite score went from 16.4 to 18.6."

Achievement points, graduation rate, end of course scores, and program review scores all factor into the overall score.

Kinney discussed the fact that program review scores need to be at least an 8. "We scored 6.9 in

SECOND CUP

By Cory Ramsey

Four hundred miles and six hours from the Great River Road begins Kentucky's fair portion of the Wilderness Road. Old US 25E used to run over the mountain at Middlesboro. Now, it runs right through it. There's a tunnel there bored below the famous Cumberland Gap that settlers once flocked to for a chance at a new life in "Kaintuck" and beyond, beginning about 1775.

Today, coming through the new tunnel, one lands off in a meteor crater where a town was settled some century or so later. Middlesborough, as spelled then, was an iron ore opportunity that flourished then failed when a London Bank had troubles at the turn of the 20th Century. From there, the old business section eventually went quiet much like several once bustling towns. Lee Majors being born and raised there was a Six Million Dollar addition, of course.

Now, the town is giving off a resort feel and banking off being in the shadow of the Gap. It has become a regional hub for a three state area that comes together at the tunnel.

All the normal chains and Walmart across from major hotels and a mall still hosting anchor stores behind a new Cracker Barrel are there. Downtown is seeing the biggest renaissance, however. A group appropriately titled "Downtown Middlesboro" brought in a hired outsider to look things over, think outside the box, and start writing grant applications to slowly breathe life back into the old commercial district.

Still, there are buildings vacant, for rent, for sale, or falling in. But for every building in that state, there are two others with new purpose. Old bank buildings made into apartments. Clothing stores. The token coffee shop.

Then the details that make any old downtown look better than the rest. Crosswalks where the asphalt was replaced with brick. Trees lining the sidewalk alongside benches. Antique water fountains turned back on. And building sized portraits of notable figures in the town's history visible from several blocks and similar to those seen in Louisville.

One alley in particular, where once a building stood, has been converted to a simple gathering spot to enjoy the mountains that surround. Wooden spools turned over to make quick tables. A string of lights from one wall to the other for flair. The town's history on signs tacked to the side of the alley, every few feet a good read and weatherproof pictures from founding to present. The lifeblood of any town is the pride from its individual history passed down by generations.

A downtown that now can compete for Kentucky mountain tourism right alongside Pikeville and Prestonburg. A place worth the drive to have a cup of coffee and see progress happen by the month. Kentucky towns could take notice that the pride is in the details and delivery of history waiting to be retold.

A VISIT TO HICKMAN: Thanks to those who came out to visit and listen for a spell at this year's Chamber dinner in Hickman. It was great to see so many that were interested in the travels I've had in Kentucky. Particular thanks to those who complimented me on this column. It is a real joy to sit down and write this out for the home folks every month for well over a year now, and I hope every one of you has a great Thanksgiving as we get back into the Christmas swing of things.

Dave Says...

by Dave Ramsey

Dear Dave,

My mother-in-law is in poor health and doesn't have a lot of money. She has been giving us a lot of her earnings over the last couple of years as a kind of early inheritance, because she's afraid she'll spend it all. We're setting it aside in a savings account in case she needs it, but I still feel strange about the situation. What do you recommend we do?

Andrew

Dear Andrew,

This is an odd scenario. It's like taking donations from poor people because they refuse to address their own issues.

My recommendation is pretty simple. She needs to learn how to properly handle her own money. Obviously, it wouldn't be a good idea for you to say that to your mother-in-law, so your wife should be the one who attempts to lovingly and carefully deliver the message. The conversation still may not be pleasant, but there's a better chance she'll listen to a daughter than to you.

I appreciate the fact that you and your wife aren't being greedy or opportunistic about this situation. Setting the money aside and earmarking it for your mother-in-law later on is an honorable thing. If your wife can't convince her mom to start taking care of her own finances, at least you can protect her from herself.

You'd still be treating the symptom instead of the problem, but if she won't listen it may be the best you can do.

—Dave

Dear Dave,

We have three daughters under the age of 5, so we may be spending quite a bit on things like weddings in the years to come. Is there a Baby Step for weddings? If not, during which Baby Step do you recommend setting aside money for this?

Carrie

Dear Carrie,

I don't have a Baby Step for weddings, but in my mind it would come after Baby Step 5, which is putting aside a college fund for your children. Once you have education savings, retirement and extra house payments underway, then you could start putting aside a little extra for weddings.

This may not make me popular with some young ladies or their moms, but an education is more important than a wedding. Maybe this is the dad in me coming out, but if I had to choose between paying for college educations and paying for big weddings, I'm going to pay for school. In my mind, anyone who disagrees with that is kind of a twit.

Weddings are wonderful, and you should mark these kinds of milestones with celebration. But a wedding is only a one-day event. Plus, there's absolutely no statistical correlation between the size and expense of the wedding and the success of the marriage!

November 29 is Small Business Saturday

By Tom Underwood

Gallup did a survey this summer. It asked people how much confidence they had in various institutions.

According to the survey, only 7 percent of Americans said they trusted Congress a great deal or quite a lot, compared with 29 percent who trusted the presidency.

Small business, on the other hand, came in second, with 62 percent of those surveyed considering it trustworthy. The only organization to score higher, not surprisingly, was the military.

While our politicians squabble, Main Street has endured. Some small-business owners, instead of laying people off, have cut their own salaries to keep their full complement of employees. Others have dipped into savings or taken out second mortgages to keep their doors open or to avoid cutting back employee hours.

That's incredible, when you think about it, and when we have a chance to thank small business and support it, we should take it.

We'll have that opportunity on Small Business Saturday.

Small Business Saturday is the Saturday after Thanksgiving, the Saturday after Black Friday, when a time for families to wake early, sit in traffic, compete with other drivers for decent parking spots, jostle with crowds and stand in line to buy things probably no one asked for or really wants.

Small Business Saturday is the opposite of that.

The campaign to "shop small" on the Saturday after Thanksgiving started in 2010 as an effort to give small businesses—many of which were struggling to get out of the red after a long recession—a much needed shot in the arm.

Since then, it has become a powerful movement to give back to the brick-and-mortar establishments that line our Main Streets and keep our communities vibrant.

The concept is simple: Instead of sitting at home and ordering online or "one-stop-shopping" at the nearest "big-box" store, you shop at small, locally-owned businesses for things you simply can't find at the mall, and instead of dealing with temporary workers who don't know the merchandise, there's a good chance you'll be dealing directly with the owner, who cares very much about making you happy so you'll come back time and again throughout the year.

And like Black Friday, Small Business Saturday comes with its own deals and discounts.

Shoppers are wising up to Small Business Saturday. Last year, shoppers spent $5.7 billion at locally-owned shops and restaurants on Small Business Saturday, according to a survey conducted by American Express and the National Federation of Independent Business. Last year's total marked a 3.6 percent increase over 2012's event.

It's strange to think that doing something so modest can have such a big impact, but it does. When you shop local and shop small, you're supporting your friends and neighbors. You're supporting your community. When you shop at a chain store, most of the money goes back to some corporate office somewhere, but when you shop on Main Street, most of that money stays on Main Street.

This holiday season, make a difference in your community: Shop local on Small Business Saturday.

Editor's Note:* Tom Underwood is the Kentucky state director of the National Federation of Independent Business, the nation's leading small-business association.

Senior Spirit

By Charlotte Smith

Unfortunately, criminals sometimes target seniors. Some of the crimes affecting senior citizens do not always involve a financial loss. Elder abuse is another form of criminal activity that seniors can become victims of which involves domestic violence and emotion abuse.

Elder abuse is categorized as a form of domestic violence since it generally takes place in the victim's place of residence. It can be defined as the intentional actions of a person that cause harm, or risk of harm, to a senior.

According to the National Center on Elder Abuse, 10 percent of seniors suffer some type of abuse, most frequently at the hands of a trusted person known well by the victim. The Center's research indicates that for every case that is reported, five cases go unreported.

Abuse can take many forms, including physical, emotional, sexual and financial abuse.

Being hurt or controlled may mean you are being abused. There are many types of elder abuse, including the following:

- Physical
- Sexual
- Psychological
- Financial
- Neglect

Watch for these indicators of abuse:

- Injuries such as cuts, bruises, difficulty walking or sitting can be symptoms of physical or sexual abuse.
- Withdrawn or fearful behavior can be associated with psychological abuse.
- Family members or friends, suddenly involved in decisions pertaining to money matters may mean trouble.
- Poor provision of nutritional and hygiene needs can point to neglect.

How to take action

Help yourself and help others who are less likely to protect themselves. Please call (206) 448-3110 if you suspect abuse.

Fire Safety

Protect yourself and your home from fires with these helpful tips:

- Test your smoke detectors once a month to make sure they work. Replace smoke detector batteries once a year.
- Keep a fire extinguisher on every floor in the house.
- Plan and practice a home fire drill. Make a map showing the exits from every room.
- Obtain an escape ladder for bedrooms located on the second floor or higher. Make sure windows can be opened easily from the inside if needed for escape.
- Make sure burners are turned off after use.
- Keep and store flammable materials in a safe place.
- Eliminate fire hazards in your home, i.e. piles of paper, smoking in bed, etc.

Area high schools send future educators to Murray State conference

MURRAY, Ky. — The Teacher Quality Institute in the Murray State University college of education and human services (CoEHS) hosted the annual Future Educators Association (FEA) Conference in the Curris Center on campus in October.

Dr. Bob Davies, MSU president, welcomed 147 future educators from high school chapters of the FEA to the conference. The keynote address, given by CoEHS faculty member Dr. Meg Crittenden, encouraged students to be leaders in their fields.

The high school students had an opportunity to participate in various breakout sessions on topics related to educational technology, library literacy and the field of teaching. They visited an exhibit area and gathered information regarding Racer Academy, financial aid and education majors. The visiting high schoolers also had the opportunity to speak with current MSU students majoring in middle school, and health and physical education.

The conference also gave students a chance to compete in events including impromptu speaking, public speaking, essay writing, résumé writing, mock job interviews, T-shirt design and a creative lecture TED talk.

FEA chapter winners:

Impromptu Speaking — Clara Arnold, Calloway County, first; Dynia Vinson, Fulton Independent, second; and Tinequa Pryor, Fulton Independent, third.

Public Speaking — Ann Marie Caldwell, Fulton Independent, first; Katie Wheeler, Crittenden County, second; and Lindsey Austin, Muhlenberg County, third.

Job Interview — Kelsea Brewer, Muhlenberg County, first; Annagrace Ligons, Fulton County, second; and John Reynolds, Muhlenberg County, third.

Ten regional high school FEA chapters were represented at Murray State's annual conference. School districts sending students to the event were Calloway County, Crittenden County, Fulton County, Fulton Independent, Graves County, Hickman County, Hopkins County, McCracken County, Muhlenberg County and Trigg County.

Established in 1937, the Future Educators Association was designed to interest promising young people in teaching as a career. Today, the national student organization is dedicated to supporting high school students interested in education-related careers.

FEATURED VETERAN - This week's featured veteran is Henry Edward Cooley, Corporal, 69th Signal Battalion, 3rd Army (Ghost Corp.), World War II Veteran. Mr. Cooley entered the military service in 1941. He took basic at Camp Crider, Missouri and Camp Mac Cain, Mississippi. His special training was in communication and was assigned to the 69th Signal Battalion. He transferred to Camp Kilmer, New Jersey for holding until shipment overseas. He boarded a Victory Ship for Warrington, England and then by train to Swingdon, England. The unit then transferred to South Hampton, England for their journal by troop carrier to engage in the D-Day invasion at Normandy. He provided critical communication for General Patton, which involved the laying of landline from Corp. Headquarters to the front lines of combat units. The engagements that Corporal Cooley participated in were: 1.) D-Day at Normandy; 2.) Battle of the Bulge; 3.) Bastogne; 4.) Argonne Forest; 5.) Siegfried Line. He was in Austria when the war ended. He participated in the liberation of France.

He was released from service on Oct. 1945. He received five bronze stars on his campaign ribbons for active participation in five major campaigns. He has several pictures of his unit members as well as commanders: General Eisenhower, General Patton and General Brady. The unit was later known as the "Ghost Corp." and their outstanding service and bravery is detailed in the book, "Hell and High Water".

He returned to his hometown of Hickman, Ky., to utilize his military skilled training and expertise as a member of the Hickman-Fulton Co. RECC for 36 years providing valuable service to residents by assisting in keeping the electricity to their homes and business through storms, lightening, ice storms or whatever the environment.

He has been married to Mrs. Dorothy I. (Turner) Cooley for 68 years. Mr. Henry Cooley is 93 and Dorothy Cooley is 85 and both continue to support their hometown and their life-long friends. He has one son, three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

"God Bless America" is Mr. Cooley's concluding statement to this interview. The Hickman Chamber of Commerce has been adding veterans' photos to this display. The Carnegie Library is home to the museum, which has on display photos of many of the veterans from this area. Stop by Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursdays between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. to visit it.

A WILDERNESS VOICE

by Tom Hoskins

SERVANT

In the secular world one often and usually starts with a menial position and works his or herself up to a place of greater income and authority, a supervisory role or even CEO of the company. That is called opportunity and part of the American dream.

However, in the Christian life and ministry it is different. It is not looking to be greater or more important than another, not to be over someone but to be under someone, to give them a boost up. In the bible a servant is described as one with a menial task, a slave, a low position, one who serves others. If you are a faithful servant of God your promotion will be from a small and difficult job to a harder and more stern post. You work your way down and not up!

Jesus said he came not to be ministered to but to minister (serve), and give his life (Mark 10:47). He got a cross for his promotion and He is the example for believers. Are you looking for success or service? Do you want to give or get? To lose your life or keep it?

Four local students earn recognition

Four students from Fulton County Elementary/Middle School (FCE/MS) have been selected to participate in The Duke University Talent Identification Program's 33rd Annual Seventh Grade Talent Search. Students must be in the seventh grade and live in or attend school within Duke TIP's 16-state Talent Search region to participate.

The four students from FCE/MS earning this distinction include Madison Halstead, Abigail Bittenbender, Benjamin Worthington, and Taivion Sanders. This quartet of students scored at the 95th percentile or higher on an acceptable subtest of a grade-level achievement or approved state criterion-referenced test taken in the fifth or sixth grades.

According to Gifted and Talented teacher, Brenda Mahan, these students will be invited to take the SAT or ACT test during this school year and along with the honor of earning this distinction, will receive information on innovative programs and resources for high achieving students.

Since its inception in 1980, over 2 million students have participated in a Duke TIP talent search.

Academically talented students need new challenges, special motivation, and support to help them reach their full potential. Duke TIP helps participants grow scholastically by providing the opportunity for above-level testing.

2. where Customer has need for temporary use of Company facilities and Company has facilities it is willing to provide.

Jr. Lady Pilots win one, lose one on the road

The Jr. Lady Pilots played in two away games last week, losing against Carlisle County and earning a win at Union City, despite a weak performance from the free throw line.

On Tuesday, Nov. 18 the ladies played in their second district game of the season at Carlisle County, falling 43-22. "I was really disappointed in our team," stated Head Coach Merry Williams. "We just didn't show up to play. Carlisle is a really tough team and to be able to walk away with a win we are going to have to come out and be ready to play and we didn't do that."

The first quarter score reflected what Coach Williams said with Carlisle County outscoring the Jr. Lady Pilots 12-3. In the second quarter the Jr. Lady Pilots came roaring back sinking 10 points to Carlisle County's four, but still behind by three, 16-13.

In the third quarter they flip flopped and the Jr. Lady Comets knocked down 15 points to the Jr. Lady Pilots six, going up by 12, 31-19.

In the final quarter the Jr. Lady Pilots scored only three points to the Jr. Lady Comets 12, ending the game 43-22.

Leading all Fulton County scorers was Alaya Barnett-8. Also scoring were: Karlie Williams-5; Kia Smith-2; Delaynee Cermak-3; and Cailey Prehoda-4.

Two days later, on Thursday, Nov. 20 the Jr. Lady Pilots were on the road again facing the Jr. Lady Tornadoes of Union City.

This time the ladies were ready to play in the first half, outscoring Union City 18-6, fueled by some outside shooting by Alaya Barnett.

The third quarter saw very little scoring with the Jr. Lady Pilots scoring just three points to Union City's four. They began the final quarter of play with the Jr. Lady Pilots on top by 13, 23-10.

The home team scored eight points in the final stanza, but the visitors topped them by one, knocking in nine to earn the victory by 14, 32-18.

Coach Williams was happy to get the win, especially with Barnett hitting three from behind the arc. Barnett lead all Fulton County scorers for the second game in a row, with 11.

Williams was close behind with 9; Cermak-7; Nikkia Smith-3; and Grace Elder-2.

Unfortunately, the ladies went seven for 25 from the charity stripe, something to work on during the Thanksgiving break.

The Jr. Lady Pilots will be back in action on Thursday, Dec. 4 on the road at Christian Fellowship.

PILOTS AND LADY PILOTS 2014-2015

BASKETBALL PREVIEW

Fulton County Lady Pilots building for success

Charles Choate
Courier Correspondent

With the regular season still a few days away for this year's Lady Pilots basketball team, Coach Leonard Smith has already accomplished a much important goal.

And that can simply be stated as - players on the floor.

Smith's 2013 season, which ended with a (3-17) record, was hampered with a group of eight players, leaving the coach with not enough bodies to hold constructive practices and little substitution choices during games.

But now the tide is turning for the Fulton County Lady's, who are practicing with 15 players on the roster.

"This is what we have needed for a long time," said Coach Smith during an afternoon practice last week. "We can now hold competitive practices, have depth on the bench and most of all have a group of talent to choice from."

To this point, Smith said the early practices sessions were putting the pieces of the puzzle together, for what he hopes are more wins on the books for the team.

"We have our good and bad days, but we are looking much better than last year. We've got alot of potential on the team, which includes a couple of freshmen who will start right off the bat. I think we are going to have a real good season."

Smith said an early mixture of returning and first year players, should give Pilot fans plenty of excitement during games.

"We're going to have Alana Coffey and Jocelyn Mosely on the floor as freshmen, and mix them with Lucy Kimble, Leslie Beth Jackson and KyLira Williams. We'll go deep on the bench with players like AnnaGregory Grissom, Dixie Major, Carly McNeill and freshmen Jekyia Warren and Jada Mathews. We have many players who can contribute this year. That is one thing that killed us last year late in the games. With the lack of players, we were just worn down at the end of games. This year we can shuffle in five at a time if we need to. It's going to help us out so much. We have kids who really want to play and it's going to make us much better."

When talking about his teams chances to compete for the First District championship this season, Coach Smith said he was confident of the Lady Pilot's opportunities.

"We know that Carlisle County will probably be the favorite, but we can play with anyone there. We played well against Hickman County and Fulton City last year, and have only made ourself better

Pilots return talent to the floor in 2014-2015

Charles Choate
Courier Correspondent

If Fulton County basketball Coach Mitchell Williamson seems over excited about this year's season, he has every reason to do so.

The Pilots are stacked with a talent laden squad, complimented by the return of four starting players from a (7-12) season one year ago.

The young Pilots team of 2013 gained vast experience on the floor, with Williamson complimenting their approach to being better this year.

"Our practices have really been intense," said the coach. "I think the guys came in knowing what we can do. We've come back after one year being longer, with some of our players going from 5'6" and 5'8" to now 5'11" and 6'0" tall. This is going to pay big rewards on the defensive end. Some of the players who have come up from the eighth grade will add depth to our bench. So everything seems to be going well for us at this point."

Williamson said he was still unsure of how the group will operate on the offensive end of the floor, which may take a couple of games to sort out.

"I just can't say if we will be a run based team or set up team. It looks that we will go about eight deep for now, which could change as the season wears on. I know that we will be a pressing team. We have the group to do that."

With the return of veterans, Steven Roberson, Davis Major, DeVontae Hampton, Ryan Williams and Aaron Allen, Williamson hopes to put more points on the scoreboard this year.

"Mainly what we are looking to do is to play smart basketball. We want to run an effective offense. Our defense has been solid, with us giving up between 50 and 60 points a game last year. The problem was that we couldn't run an offense to put points on the board. This is a major focus of what we are doing now, we're looking at the dribble-drive and again using our added height to make these improvements."

Williamson said he was looking hard to Roberson and Major to lead the team, after each had successful seasons in 2013.

"These two are going to have to be consistent and average about 35 points combined each game for us to win. I'm looking for Freshman Dre Smith to step into a role which is going to be tough, and Allen and Hampton are also going to have to be contributors."

The Pilots are hoping that a tough regular season schedule will play big dividends in their efforts to capture the First District title and berth in the First Region Tournament.

'We are trying to get better with our schedule," said Williamson. "We play Paducah Tilghman, Graves County, we are in the Tilghman Christmas Tournament, we play Obion County, Trenton Peabody, Murray High and Calloway County. This hard schedule should get us ready to win in the district."

Williamson said he sees the team poised to be competitive in the District, which will again be loaded with talent. "We know that Carlisle County is going to be tough and Fulton City really got better at the end of last season. Hickman County lost several

Under his guidance, HFRECC has deployed an Automated Metering Infrastructure, installed Reliability Improvements and signed Territorial Boundary Agreements with all neighboring utilities. HFRECC has also installed a fiber link to its Hickman and Clinton Substations, which enables it to communicate more efficiently with the substations. Grissom also guided HFRECC through the largest ice storm in the history of the cooperative back in January 2009.

"We wish Mr. Grissom well as he assumes his new leadership position at Pennyrile RECC, one of the largest and successful cooperatives in the state," added Kimbell.

"I would like to say Thank You to all of Cooperative Members, Board of Directors and Employees for such wonderful support and allowing me to serve the Coop and the community," stated Grissom. "Hickman and Fulton County will always be home and I will miss everyone, but Pennyrile Electric offers a great opportunity for career advancement that I cannot refuse. We will make a slow transition, to Hopkinsville, we plan to stay in Hickman until AnnaGregory graduates in 2016." Grissom resides in Hickman with is wife Denise and their two children, AnnaGregory and Greyson.

Grissom's last day with HFRECC will be February 28, 2015.

Arts & Humanities and a 7 in writing," he said. "Our highest score was in Practical Living and Career studies. We got a 9.6." Kinney added that more evidence is required to raise these scores.

"We are hitting ourselves hard," stated Suttles. "The staff meets regularly with PaTrice Chambers to make sure we are doing our job. Reviews are conducted every month and a half."

Major touched on school-wide improvements that the council would like to see addressed. Items including remodeling bathrooms (which is on the current facilities plan), lockers refurbished, install gas line in chemistry lab, refinish the stage floor, and new gym mats. "We are in the process of checking prices and will try to use some of our carry-over money for these improvements," added Major.

The SBDMC also highlighted achievements such as having Ally McMillin earn number nine status in the nation and Annagrace Ligons (FFA President) and Dixie Major (FFA Vice President) named Murray State University all region stars.

Knowing that math is an area that needs much improvement FCHS teachers have spent time at other high achieving high schools gathering information to assist them with increasing their own math test scores. "We want to do whatever it takes to get us where we need to be," added Chambers. "Math is at 19% right now and we want 40%."

"We do not accept 30% achievement in this district," added Fulton County Schools Superintendent Aaron Collins. "We need to work hard to give resources to the administrators who will in turn pass them on to the teachers."

SINGING - West Hickman Baptist Church members (l to r) Edie Lane, Roger Adams, Donna Lane and Kaitlyn Parker were among those who led the congregation in song on Sunday, Nov. 23 during a Thanksgiving Community Service held at Hickman First United Methodist Church.

A la carte items will increase at Fulton County Schools effective January 1, 2015

"In October 2014, The Division of School and Community Nutrition conducted an administrative review in regards to Fulton County Schools Food Services program. The Director of Food Services, Delores Giles and her department receive an overall positive review. We are proud of the food services department as they ensure our students receive two hot and nutritious meals a day at no cost to families and that follow USDA guidelines. The Division of School and Community Nutrition, within their review, requested the school board review the pricing for FCEMS À la carte lunch in order to become compliant in regards to the non-program revenue tool. The school board reviewed the information and in October, voted to adjust FCEMS À la carte lunch to correlate to the FCHS pricing of À la carte lunch at $1.40. This was voted in favor by the school board at the October 16th board meeting. Please note that this was done due to legalities stated by the Administrative Auditor and the district was requested to act prior to students returning in January from winter break. Therefore, effective January 1, 2015, À la carte Lunch price will be $1.40 in the Fulton County School District. This will not affect most families and is only paid by a student if they purchase an additional lunch. In order for a student to purchase an À la carte lunch, the student must have money in their personal food service account or pay cash.

Thank you for your help with this matter," states the press release issued by the school district.

players from last years team, but they will still be talented. But, I have to say that they will all be pointing to us also, because we are returning experience and we played hard in the district last year."

The Pilots will open their season with Paducah Tilghman at home on December 2nd, and have 30 total games scheduled.

"We're ready to go," said Williamson. "The guys are going all out in practice and I think they realize that we can do good things. I really think it's going to be a good season. I just wish we started tomorrow."

have data to validate that statement," added Suttles. "I am extremely proud of my students accomplishments and know they are developing skills that will ensure college and career success."

"The vision of FCHS is ascertained as our FFA and Agriculture Science program prove to be the best in the Commonwealth!" noted Fulton County Schools Superintendent Aaron Colins.

Suttles has been at FCHS for four years.
